The graph traversal algorithms can know the relationship between vertices, by traversing through the edges. For example, we can find whether cycles exist in a graph, the distance between two vertices, whether we can go from an vertex to another, etc. All of those are not possible with just iterating through the vertices.