Class invariants:

content of the string is stored as a dynamically allocated array of char; the length of the array is the length of string plus one (null terminator); the last block of the array contains the char '\0'.

preconditions for String::substring startIndex and endIndex are unsigned int; startIndex and endIndex is smaller than the length of string; startIndex <= endIndex